“ My sincere condolences to Ashley's dear family, and may these promises from the Scriptures bring them comfort now, and in the days to come. Jehovah God is close to the broken at heart, and he will wipe away the tears from all faces. Psalms 34:18; Isaiah 25:8. Peace be with you.

“ Every time I think about Ashley, I think about the time I was babysitting her and I went to take a shower (yeah I wasn't much of a babysitter lol). When I was getting out of the shower, someone was knocking at the door. So I put my robe on and wrapped a towel around my head, answered the door and there was a police officer standing there. He calmly asked me if the house was on fire. I said, well not that I'm aware of. He said that someone had called 911 and reported the house was on fire. Well, come to find out, Ashley called 911 bc it was hot in the house and she thought it was on fire! 😞 For me, this perfectly sums up Ashley. She was crazy, silly, mischievous and even though I wanted to wring her neck, I couldn't help but laugh. It breaks my heart that she left this earth at such a young age and that her son will not physically have her in his life as he grows up. But I pray that God can bring them comfort and remind them of stories like this, so they can remember the joy she brought to everyone's life. If nothing else, maybe he can get to know her through pictures and memories shared. 💕
